THE

So^th. Carolina GAZETTE.

TUESDAY November 20, 1753.

COMPEIGNE, Auguſt 2.

THE Prince of Conti has not diſcontinued his good offices for accommodating affairs between the king and the parliament, but has every day been employed with his majeſty ſeveral hours on this buſineſs. Though the whole negociation is carried on with great ſecrecy, and without the intervention of any body, there is good reaſon to believe that it will prove ſucceſsful. The day before yeſterday a great council was held upon ſome diſpatches which the court had received from Rouen, from whence we hear that the parliament of Normandy had decreed the Biſhop of Evreux to make his perſonal appearance, and laid a fine upon him of 6000 livres: The king in his council has not only diſannulled this decree, but it's aſſured that the parliament of Rouen, in caſe of oppoſition, is threatned with more rigorous meaſures.

Paris-A-la-main, Auguſt 6. The people are very impatient to know who are to compoſe the chamber of vacations. It is aſſured that it has been propoſed to ſeveral tribunals, particularly to the grand council, to the maſters of requeſt, and to the chatelet; but we don't know what anſwers they gave.

M. de Feugeres, exempt of the corps des Gardes, having laſt week been ſent by the king to the parliament of Rouen, and upon going into the chamber of their aſſembly, he demanded the moſt honorable place. The members in order to ſatisfy him, gave him that under the oldeſt deans of the counſellors, but that did not content him; ſo he placed himſelf in the middle of them, and there preſented the court with a lettre de cachet, which enjoined the members to eraſe from their regiſter, the laſt arret, which the court refuſing to do, he preſented another lettre de cachet, whereby the king authoriſed him to cauſe the regiſter to be delivered to him, which was accordingly brought, and as he himſelf was going to execute the orders which were contained in that letter, the members roſe, in order to retire: Upon which M. de Feugerees repreſented to them, that this action favoured of diſobedience to the orders of his majeſty. They then aſked him, whether it was mentioned in the lettre de cachet, that they ſhould be preſent. To which he anſwered, that it was not. They therefore roſe and ſeparated. It's thought that the arret in queſtion is, that which fined the Biſhop of Evreux ſix thouſand livres.

We hear that the parliament of Aix has cauſed a prieſt of the pariſh near that city to be whipped and marked, for having refuſed the ſacraments.

The conteſt concerning the rank of the Prince de Soubieze, and the titles which he is to take upon him, is not yet determined, the princes of the blood continuing to claim their right.
